A Municipal Band

HONGKONG has always been musically appreciative, but never musically conscious enough to stimulate the formation and sustenance of a Town Band or Municipal Orchestra. Old residents will remember how the crowds flocked to the City Hall, and later the King's Theatre and Star Theatre to hear world-famous in strumentalists, vocalists and choirs such as Moiseivitch. Heifetz, Rubenstein, Kube-Challapin and the Westminster Glee Singers. and since the war visiting musicians and local orchestras have attracted full hod uses. Nevertheless. CO-STAR

Beauty, talent and mutual liking create a bond between this lovely actress, Andree Debar, and the white Persian kitten, Saha. They both have important parts in the episode "Envy" from the continental Tilm "The Seven Sins."

"Envy," starring Andree Debar and Orfen Tamburi and directed by Roberto Rossellini, is adapted from the novel "The Cat" by Colette. The story is about a beautiful young French girl whose marriage to a middle-aged Italian painter is disrupted by her jealousy of the husband's much-loved pet kitten.—Reuterphoto.

Charles Ribbands and H. L. Nixon found this out by making bees radioactive.

They trained six bees to feed on a radioactive, nectar-like syrup, and watched them take load after load back to the hive.

Master horologist's dream is realized— 104 years after his death

ABRAM-LOUIS PERRELET, of Lo A Locie, in Switzerland, was born in 1729 and died in 1826. He was a watchmaker. A great watchmaker. And, greatest of his achievements, perhaps, was the invention of a self-winding watch. This pedometer, or Jerkwinding pocket-watch, inspired men like Breguet and Recordon to emulatehim, and set the direction of research into the self-winding principle for the next hundred years.

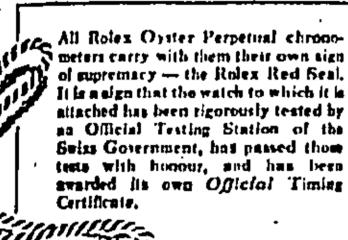

A typical pedometer watch, inspired by Abram-Louis Perrelet's prototype. None of the watches made by him has survived.

But Perrelet's pocket-watch, though it wound itself, was not the final answer. The constant jerking told hard on the mechanism, and although perfect in theory, in practice the jerkwinder's shortcomings doomed it to failure from the start.

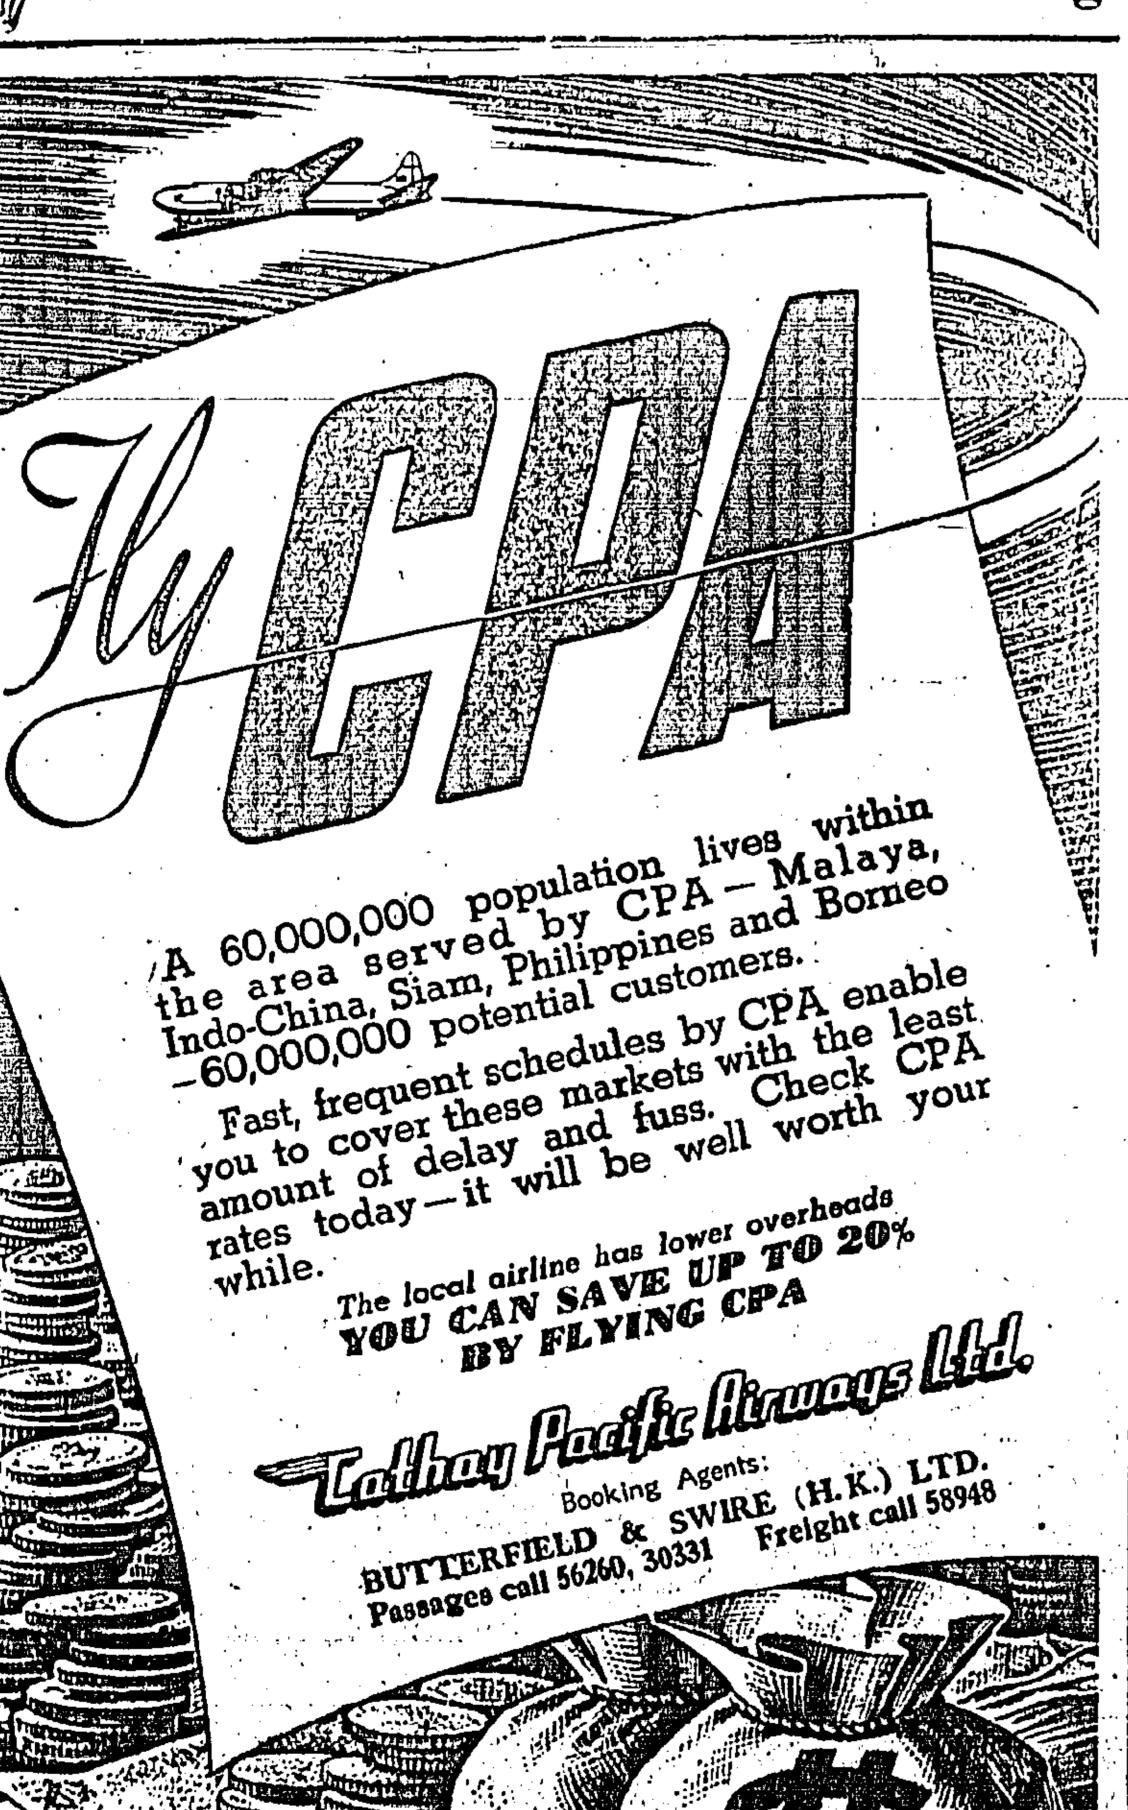

Different applications of the principle were used; different, often fantastic, types of watch made their appearance. But for two centuries after Perrelet's birth, no one had bettered his achievement; no one had produced a really practical self-winding

And then, in 1930, Rolex began their attempts to solve the problem. With the

The world's first self-winding and waterproof wrist-watch

Rolex Oyster case ready to protect the delicate mechanism that was demanded, they set to work - and found the solution within a year, Perrelet's dream of the perfect self-winding watch was realized at last!

The Rolex 'Rotor', as the new selfwinding mechanism was called, was patented in 1931, and answered all the demands made upon it. Here at last was the true selfwinding watch: the Oyster Perpetual.

Abram-Louis Perrelet,

Twenty years of testing, both in laboratories and in real life, have fully established the reputation of the Oyster Perpetual. The Oyster Perpetual can truly be said to have opened up new horizons in the whole of the watchmaking world.

YORLD'S FIRST SELF-WINDING WRIST-WATCH 'As simple as it was hard to find, the Rolex 'Rotor', the invention that solved the self-winding problem, owes its existence to the impiration of Mr. H. Wilidorf of the Rolex Watch Company, and his brilliant technical Chief-Director M. Emil Borer. A semi-circle of metal revolving on its own axis, the Rotor obviated all the mags of the old hammer-jerks, and with its coming the first true self-winding wristwatch - the Oyster Perpetual - was born. The motion of the wrist, acting on the Rotor, means that worn for only 6 hours a day, the watch will never Evening Glamour. Eau de toilette in a golden ease slips into your purse for late-hour freshening-up.

T'S time to travel. Time to pack. And whether you're planning a long week-end. the regular two-week vacation or a trip around the world, packing has its problems. What to take? What not to take?

These days it's a little easier, of course. Nylon undles and, yes, even nylon frocks, have helped to make for lots of space, since you can carry a minimum of garments and, with simple nightly rinsings, keep your wardrobe fresh indefinitely-and. no ironing to worry about either.

But do make use of the space you save. And make use of it glamorously. Put in those creams, those lotions, plenty of cosmetics—and perfume. No excuse now for leaving out your usual cosmetics, for you've plenty of room. And how fortunate it is! For, when you come to think of it, aren't the vacation days the very best days for following a strict beauty 'c routine? There's no alarm to wake you for the job ahead. No hurrled bath. No cup of coffee to be gulped with one eye on the clock. Instead, leisurely rising, leisurely dressing, plenty of time for a good make-up job and plenty, of time for a good healthand-beauty-giving breakfast. One bright phophecy comes from British Nylon Spinners. They told me that by the end of 1954, with the completion of their new plant, they will be able to meet maximum demands for nylon yarns. Production will then be 30 million lb. a year (compared with 10 million lb. now).

So three Christmases away we may once more be able- to order half a dozen pairs of nylon stockings at a time. Until then the great nylon hunt is on.

Picturing Stock on the Farm

FEW weeks ago I visited a A farm, which prides itself on its stock. Its cattle frequently win first prizes at fairs in our part of the country; its sheep and hogs are well regarded by local livestock breeders. Lining the walls of the owner's office are pictures of his champions. Such pictures, made to show the characteristic points of blue ribbon winners, are far different from the amateur's simple animal snaps. Yet I am sure most picture takers could learn much from these shots. And could learn much from the skilled photographer specialises in them.

"The big thing in picturing farm animals, the owner told me; "is patience. Animals can't be hurried. I've watched when most of these pictures were made. The photographer always moved deliberately, careful not to frighten the animal lest it. bolt across the field.' Looking at the pictures, 1

I asked the owner about this. "There's nothing," he said, "that makes an animal look more fired than dropping cars. They shoot, focused and set to click immense audience by the shutter, I try to make a quick, sharp noise to attract the animal's attention. Invariably day sports, alcohol and war; he pricks up his cars. And at that moment—Snap."

THE SAGE OF BALTIMORE: the life and richous times of H. L. Mencken. By William Mancester. Melrose. 21s. 272 pages.

MONG primitive tribes, a painful and humiliating A ordeal marks the boy's advance into manhood. In the protracted adolescence of America, H. L. Mencken served as a one-man rite of initiation.

In the mid-twenties, this human gadfly made himself responsible for the rescue of American civilisation, as he saw it, from puritans, politicians, progressives, reactionaries, toadies of England, bad writers, and others foes of light and

All against the 'superior

For such remarks he was called "a clever and bitter Jew." He was for years listed in the Jewish Who's Who, laughed every time that book of reference was published. He is not a Jew.

> 'After the war he launched' the American Mercury as a kindof tank onslaught on his country's way of life. One story, about the alleged aphrodisiae effects of revivalist sermons, got the magazine banned in Boston. Mencken sold a copy in a Boston street to the chief local consor. He was instantly crrested.

The judge decreed that, as the evidence was of an obscene nature, all testimony must be given in whispers. In spite of this unpromising start, and to his own astonishment, Mencken was acquitted.

Prohibition

Prohibition-known as The Horror-was a bitter blow, and a magnificent target, to this beerlover. Reduced to the last 700 bottles in his cellar, he brewed beer for himself. On the day his friends assembled to taste this marvel, it all blew up.

At a party, he and his purtner, George Jean Nathan, the dramatic critic, were accosted by a red-headed drunk who said, "So you guys are critics, are you? Well, let me tell you something. I am the best goddam writer in this here goddam country." Next day, Mencken found a manuscript from this horror on his desk. From Baltimore he wrote to Nathan: "Grab hold of the bar-rail; steady yourself.

ON THE MOON?

By LEE PRIESTLEY

N7HEN rockets travel to VV the moon, we may be able to check the legends that tell who lives there. For thousands of years there has been a world-wide difference of opinion.

American and European hildren believe that the spots and shadows on the moon's gleaming surface are the features of the Man in the Moon. He was once woodcutter, so legend tells, who insisted on working on Sundays. So he was snatched up to the moon where all days are alike. If you look closely you may see that he still carries a bundle of wood on his back.

MINTELLIGENCE TEST FOUR COLOURS

By T. O. HARE A REGULAR tetrahedron—it will be recalled—is a solid figure having four faces, each face an equilateral triangle. I have a number of nuch solids, identical in size, I propose to paint one face of each tetrahedron red; one face, yellow; one face, blue; the fourth face, green. In the centre of each face there is to be a small circle, each circle of the same size, coloured differently from the face itself; and the four colours—red, yellow, blue, green—are to be used for the four circles of each tetrahedron. How many tetrahedra can t produce which are dis-tinguishable from one another?

ROBABLY it was as the old lady said. In her peregrinations round the West End she had lost a pound note. So when, in a store, she came upon a handbag she liked that was priced at roughly £1 more than was left in her purse, she knew what to do. She stole the bag.

There was a fuddled logic in it. She, through misfortune, had lost £1. What more just, she reasoned, no doubt, than a similar misfortune should visit the store?

She was not a very thief, not greatly daring, nor as brazen as some women are when they give their minds to on enterprise. times she had the bag in her hands; three times at the vital moment she lost her nerve and returned it to the display counter.

By the time she had plucked up courage for a fourth attempt it seems likely that the eyes of everyone in the department were upon her. Certainly those of a store detective were. The old lady, whose name was Myrtle, made off with her prize, and the detective followed her into the street and challenged her ownership

"There is one previous conviction for obtaining cedit by fraud," a police_ officer told the magistrate, and you wondered what fraud the old lady could ever have perpetrated. "There are also many convicdrunkenness. tions for understand from Mrs Gray that she is on probation from another court...."

TARS Gray, the probation IVI officer, stepped forward and said that was so; and she explained about Myrtle's crime of obtaining credit by fraud. One day, it seems, Myrtle had treated herself to a meal costing 19s. 9d., and then had been unable to pay the bill

"Her present employer is in court." Mrs Gray said, "and would like to speak for her. She stood down, and into the witness-box come a handsome man who looked puzzled and said: "I can say this, when -she went out yesterday afternoon she did have money enough to pay for the bag. She has only been with us a month, but we have found her very trustworthy. She has been left alone in the flat over week-ends, and everything has been in order."

"No signs of heavy drinking?" the magistrate asked. "Not until yesterday," was the answer. "Are you going to keep her

That's a matter for my wife. I can't speak for that, owing to certain circumstances in the house." Myrtle's em-ployer said. "I personally would like to keep her on."

RAYRTLE by now was sob-IVI bing, Silent, heavy, sobs that shook the whole of her frame. She dabbed her eyes with a handkerchief that she held in a hand that was tremblingly out of control., ...

Judge Gustavo Guerrero, of El Salvador, President of the Four wickets then fell in 40 Commission, said in closing the third session that repeated appeals to Russia had not availed. He added:

"The Commission has, with great regret, come to the conclusion that, lacking this cooperation, it will not be able to carry out the essential task for which it was created."

The Commission, boycotted by Russia since its creation by the Assembly in 1950, was to "settle the question of the prisoners of war in a purely humanitarian spirit and on terms acceptable to all the governments concerned." Judge Guerrero said that the Commission will report to the United Nations in time for the Assembly -- next -- month. He stated: "The Commission dares to hope that a new and urgent appeal for international cooperation-an appeal addressed to the humanitarian spirit of all governments-will permit it to pursue its work.

London, Sept. 12. The Aga Khan's Tulyar, though easing half a point to 11 to eight, remained the firm favourite to win at tomorrow's Doncaster St. Leger, when the card was called over for the last time at the Victoria Club tonignt.

General opinion at the Club was that Tulyar, already the greatest money spinner in British turf history, had to some extent killed public interest in the raco.
